

ZIM starts new service connecting Asia with North America

January 25, 2024

Israeli ocean carrier ZIM Integrated Shipping Services announced the launch of ZIM PNW Xpress (ZPX) service, an independent service that will connect Asia, Canada and the United States via Vancouver Gateway.

The new service commenced operations on 21 January from the port of Cai Mep in Vietnam and will have the following rotation:

Cai Mep (Vietnam) – Yantian (China) – Kaohsiung (Taiwan) – Xiamen (China) – Ningbo (China) – Shanghai (China)– Vancouver, Deltaport (Canada) – Pusan (South Korea) – Cai Mep

The company said ZPX offers a premium service ensuring a swift and reliable connection from Asia to the Pacific Northwest market via the Vancouver gateway.

Exclusive service features include extensive rail connectivity covering all major Canada and US inland IPI destinations, including East & Central Canada, US Mid-West, Ohio Valley and more.

Hani Kalinski, ZIM executive vice president of Pacific BU, commented, "ZIM remains committed to providing agile premium solutions that cater to the market's evolving needs. The launch of ZPX reaffirms our dedication to delivering unparalleled shipping solutions with exclusive premium features."
